Summary of CV

This section describes briefly a summary of your career in science, academic and research; the main scientific and technological achievements and goals in your line of research in the medium -and long- term. It also includes other important aspects or peculiarities.

My career, which has been dedicated to the transversal field of gender and feminism, is grounded on a solid pre-doctoral track record, a relevant and objective ability to receive and manage research funds, and an important international activity. To date, I have worked for five years at Seville University, and, for the last two, I have been lecturing at a private university. Furthermore, I have taught at the University of the Basque Country / Euskal Herriko Unibersitatea, Moulay Ismail University (Morocco), and Malaga University.

With reference to my experience as a lecturer, I would put the accent on the more than six years that I have been teaching uninterruptedly different modules in different cycles at both private and public universities, my commitment to continuous improvement being reflected in positive student feedback. This has led me to pursue a continuous professional development, to specialize in e-learning formats, and to lead different projects keyed to teaching innovation.

Concerning my research activities, I would like to highlight the relevance of the papers that I have published in both Spanish and international journals with an acknowledged impact factor, indexed in the main databases and repositories of my study area. That my research has been recognized by the scientific community is borne out by both the high number of citations that my papers have received (Hi=6) and the number of requests that I receive annually to peer-review international scientific papers. In 2016, I received the 'Joven Cultura Científica' Award.

By the same token, I have participated in over 20 conferences and congresses, delivering keynotes in several languages, in both Spain and abroad. Moreover, I have collaborated in knowledge transfer activities with city councils, secondary schools, and public institutions, such as the Andalusian Public Security School (ESPA), the Department of Justice and the Interior of the Regional Government of Andalusia, and the General Council of the Judiciary. As an example of my commitment to knowledge transfer, it is worth mentioning my comprehensive, ongoing participation in different research groups and networks, including the following: Estudios de Medios para un Periodismo de Calidad; the Spanish Network of Development Studies (REEDES); the Spanish Association of Communication Research (AE-IC); and the AFRIDOCE cooperation group of Seville University which I am currently coordinating.

As to my qualifications, I would like to stress the evaluations I obtained for my PhD dissertation (cum laude por unanimidad and the 'Doctor Europaeus' Mention), the pre-doctoral research scholarships (FPU, PIF, Colaboración e Iniciación a la Investigación) I have held, and the grants I have obtained for project development or implementing teacher training and innovation initiatives. This desire to improve has led me to participate in several R&D&i research and international cooperation projects and in four research stays.

My current aim is to consolidate my career by undergoing further training in a sole research group that approaches current socio-economic reality and social development – both central to my lines of research: violence against women; global social development; and communication policies and practices – from a gender perspective.
